The present invention relates to integrated circuit devices and, more particularly, to a high voltage and lower current trench gate device and a manufacturing method therefor. Deep trench isolation (DTI) has been used in trench-type MOSFETs to form devices using a p-type substrate and a p-type well. An isolation spacer is often formed on the sidewalls of a trench to protect the sidewalls of the trench from damage during the subsequent processing steps. One problem of such a formation method is that the isolation spacer is often formed to a thickness that makes the distance between the surface of the substrate and the top edge of the isolation spacer shorter than the desired distance between the top edge of the isolation spacer and the gate electrode. Shorter distance increases the overlap capacitance between the gate electrode and the isolation spacer, which lowers the breakdown voltage of the device. The method of forming a trench gate isolator by filling a first trench is introduced. The trench is then lined with a conformal liner, such as silicon nitride (Si_3N_4), and then a conformal masking material, such as silicon dioxide (SiO_2), is deposited. A second trench is then formed to a depth greater than that of the first trench. A conformal insulator, such as silicon dioxide, is then deposited, filling the second trench and the spaces between the first and second trenches. A portion of the conformal insulator is removed to form an opening. The opening is then filled with an epitaxial silicon layer, which serves as a vertical epi-isolator for isolating the vertical surfaces of the substrate from the substrate surface. A buffer oxide layer is then deposited to serve as a gate oxide and a gate is formed from polysilicon. A silicide layer is then formed on the source/drain regions in a conventional manner. The present invention provides a high voltage device that reduces the overlap capacitance between the gate and the isolation spacer. The present invention also provides a high voltage device having a sidewall metal for improving the trench profile and a method of manufacturing the high voltage device. The present invention provides a high voltage device and a method of manufacturing the high voltage device having a trench which is lined with a conformal liner. The present invention also provides a high voltage device having a conformal isolator thereon. Waiting It Out was the debut release by former Saint Chords member, Josh Fauver. The

How to create threads using boost threads I am attempting to create any number of threads from a single object "Clients". Basically, the program will create threads that will perform different tasks to specific clients. I currently have no idea what the best method is for doing about this task. The only things I am unsure about is what datastructure I should use to represent a single client and how to implement the threads: `typedef boost::tr1::shared_ptr ClientPtr; typedef boost::tr1::shared_ptr ClientThreadPtr; typedef boost::tr1::vector ThreadVector; A: For the scheduler. We are not going to be able to hand over the necessary information to the threads runtime environment. There's no real multithreading support in the boost thread library. You should use something like the policies library. Use regular thread local storage to pass the clients into threads. Prefer boost::thread::join over boost::thread::detach for creating new threads on every call. Extracellular Stable Copper(I) Complexes: Structures, Synergistic Binding Sites, and Potential for Use`
