Incorporating review into the creative process can increase the efficiency and accuracy of the timeline. Now, when you view a collection of images, comments for a particular image appear alongside the thumbnails. Simply click a comment to view or address the review: Reviews are in a separate panel and the comment can now be selected and edited, in real time. You can continue to update the PSD with reviewers seeing those changes when the file is refreshed or reopened. The new feature also removes the need to copy and paste comments in reviews, as you can now address each comment as a separate comment card. Tri-colored labels appear in the comments panel to indicate where the comment comes from, whether it's a last view, an update or an address. These labels also indicate if the comment is editable or non-editable. These new editable labels provide a great workflow as you can simply make changes, then go back to an update and make those edits. Editable and non-editable labels make it clear which comments are available on a particular revision without having to manually select each comment. When you are ready to address a comment, simply select the comment you'd like to edit and press Enter. Lightroom automatically selects the best revision to address the comment: Salesforce.com, Adobe's cloud-based enterprise content management system, is now available with Lightroom. With this immediate integration, sales teams can now import, manage and share their digital content directly from Salesforce throughout the organization, on the go or at their desks.

If I tap the button on the main view, the view works fine, but the segue never completes. I'm locking the screen in the prepareForSegue, changing the VC, then unlocking the screen. Is there some overlap when I attempt to unlock the screen that causes it to not have released the lock? That's what I'm wondering... -(void)prepareForSegue:(UIStoryboardSegue *)segue sender:(id)sender { if (self.viewController == segue.destinationViewController) return; UINavigationController* nav = (UINavigationController*)segue.destinationViewController; if ([nav.viewControllers count] > 1) { UIViewController *pad = ((UINavigationController*)nav).topViewController; self.navigationController = nav; } } A: You'll want to write your segue to be chained to multiple destination view controllers, and use a block in your prepareForSegue to set the destination view controller to be the last pushed view
